LEAF FROM WEE-WEE TALES.

From a forthcoming volume by Leila Lee,—Bakeman & Mason, publishers, New York.

Jesse Pinkham had come with his pious wife and mother to live in a mining district, where he was the only man who loved and served God.—Poor indeed was this Christian family in this world's goods, but rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom that God hath prepared for them that love Him.

It was a grief of heart to Jesse and his family, that all their kind interest in their neighbors seemed to be of no avail to gain their confidence and esteem. They tried in a very gentle way to win them to leave the service of sin and Satan.—But their wicked neighbors only persecuted them, and seemed to hate them the more for all their kindness. The truth of the matter was this, the other miners were ashamed of the contrast, when they saw how comfortably and happily Jesse lived in his quiet home, while with the same wages, they were surrounded with rags, and dirt and wretchedness.

On the Sabbath, the pious miner, with Bessie his wife, would wend their way early in the morning to a village five miles distant, where the sound of the church bell welcomed them to the house of prayer. It was hard to leave their aged mother alone in the midst of so much wickedness,—and harder yet was it to look upon that multitude, who were so wicked. None of them were preparing for Heaven, and yet many of them might be called very suddenly into eternity.

Jesse Pinkham knew that the state of his companions was one of unusual danger. You know, children, it would not be possible for miners to dig down in the bowels of the earth, if they were not provided with lamps. These lamps have a wire case around them, forming a kind of lantern to protect the flame from coming in contact with the fire-damp.

For in these deep, dark pits, there is often an unhealthy state of atmosphere that will extinguish the light or cause an explosion in the mine. If they were suddenly left in the dark, the working parts were so full of holes that it was almost impossible for miners to escape from falling in, when they would certainly be drowned. Jesse knew that his companions often entered the mines half intoxicated, and he was all the while afraid that an explosion would take place. And O, how awful was the thought of seeing any of these wicked men hurried away in their wickedness!

It was Saturday evening. The labor of the week was over, and the miners assembled on the green for amusement. Keene, who was the ringleader in all evil, suddenly called the attention of his companions to a notice upon a tree in the centre of the green.

"What's all this!" they exclaimed, as they gathered round in astonishment to read the notice—"The resident clergymen from Frankfort will spend the ensuing Sabbath in this village, and divine service will be held at ten in the morning on this green."

Then they shouted and screamed, "We all know where this man comes from. We'll out with him. No psalm singing, no canting, and no reading and praying here." Let us listen to Keene's account of the matter. "Well, the minister came and he found a Babel. We all got together, and raved, and laughed, and pitched into him, and made such a noise that the parson had to give it up. He tried again and again, and he was right among us—he was plucky, I tell you—we hooted in his ears and threw mud on his bettermost clothes, and so he was fairly driven off, because you see we had liquor enough in us to make us all crazy."

PRAYING FOR MISSIONARIES DAILY.

About twenty years ago, in a Sabbath School in one of our highly favored New England towns, a teacher of a class of little girls was endeavoring to enlist the sympathies of the children in behalf of the missionary and Sabbath School concerts and other charities of the day. She begged that they would remember to pray for each object on the particular day set apart to plead its cause before the mercy-seat. That teacher will never forget the earnest, almost reproachful reply of one little girl, only seven years old, as she exclaimed, "Oh, Miss P., I never forget to pray for the poor heathen and missionaries every day."

IN EVERY TROUBLE PRAY.

Little children know where to go when they are afraid.

Not long since, a little way above the city, an estimable lady of my acquaintance, and her little daughter, became very much alarmed for the safety of the husband and father, who was crossing the Delaware in a little boat when it was quite rough. But the little girl thought of the proper help, and said, "Mamma, let us pray," which immediately they did. Then the child said, "You pray on, mamma, and I will watch."

The mother did pray on. After awhile the little girl exclaimed, "he is safe!" for she saw him land. Then both were happy; and the mother was about to go to her daily duties. "Now," said the little girl, "Let us give thanks." Blessed child! her mother had not thought of that. Little one, speak out for Jesus—he loves you.

BUSY AS A BEE.

Children think it is all right that their fathers and mothers are busy. The father must go to his work, or his store, and the mother, from the time she rises in the morning, is very busy. Papa wants a button sewed on—Betty must be told what to get for breakfast—then the little girls and boys must be made ready for school, or some of their lessons must be listened to—so mamma has plenty to do from morning till night, and sometimes even after daylight has passed away. There are some little girls who like to be busy too, and would not be found idle, for fear Satan would find some mischief for them to do with their little hands and active thoughts. And now I must tell you about a little girl a good minister speaks of, who presented her first piece of work to the Lord, as her offering:—

"A little girl of my acquaintance, in early life seemed to have the right spirit, in this great matter. By her industry she had pieced a bed quilt, which her mother and sisters put into the frame and quilted. Just as it was completed, the church was making up a box of clothing to send to a home missionary. This little girl asked her mother for the privilege of sending her quilt—"No," replied the mother, "but you may send the next one." "Please, no," replied the little girl, "Let me give the first one to the Lord."—This is the true spirit."

The Jewish people were commanded to give a part of all their first fruits of the earth to the Lord. Surely, the first, which is the best of everything, is his right, who has given us all things. "The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof," is a good text to say before you go to sleep to-night, and perhaps it will be the first thing that will turn up in your memory in the morning, when you awake.

DON'T FORGET TO PRAY.

A lady who had charge of young persons not of kindred blood, became on one occasion perplexed with regard to her duty. She retired to her room to meditate, and being grieved in spirit, laid her head on a table, and wept bitterly. She scarcely perceived her little daughter, seated quietly in the corner. Unable longer to bear her mother's distress, she stole softly to her side, and taking her hand in both of her own, said, "Mamma, you have taught me a pretty hymn."

"If e'er you meet with trials
Or troubles on the way,
Then cast your care on Jesus,
And dont forget to pray."

The counsel of the little monitor was taken and relief came. The mother was repaid for rightly training her child, by having her become her own blessed teacher. "Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast thou ordained praise."

A BAD MARK.

"I've got a boy for you, sir."

"Glad of it; who is he?" asked the master-workman of a large establishment.

The man told the boy's name, and where he lived.

"Don't want him," said the master-workman, "he has got a bad mark."

"A bad mark, sir! what?"

"I meet him every day with a cigar in his mouth. I don't want smokers."

LITTLE WILLIE TAKEN UP.

BY REV. E. H. SEARS.

Some have thought that in the dawning,
In our being's freshest glow,
God is nearer little children
Than their parent's ever know;
And that, if you listen sharply,
Better things than you can teach,
And a sort of mystic wisdom,
Trickles through their careless speech.

How it is I cannot answer—
But I know a little child,
Who, among the thyme and clover,
And the bees, was running wild;
And he came one summer evening,
With his ringlets o'er his eyes,
And his hat was torn in pieces,
Chasing bees and butterflies.

"Now I'll go to bed, dear mother,
For I'm very tired of play!"
And he said his "Now I lay me"
In a kind and careless way.
And he drank the cooling water
From his little silver cup,
And said gaily, "When its morning,
Will the angels take me up?"

Down he sank, with roguish laughter,
In his little trundle-bed,
And the kindly god of slumber
Showered the poppies o'er his head.
"What could mean his speaking strangely?"
Asked his musing mother then—
"O, 'twas nothing but his prattle;
What can he of angels ken?"

There he lies, how sweet and placid!
And his breathing comes and goes,
Like a zephyr moving softly,
And his cheek is like a rose:
But she leaned her ear to listen
If his breathing could be heard—
"Oh!" she murmured, "if the angels
Took my darling at his word!"

Night within its folding mantle
Hath the sleepers both beguiled,
And within its soft embracings
Rest the mother and the child.
Up she startleth from her dreaming,
For a sound has struck her ear—
And it comes from little Willie,
Lying on his trundle near!

Up she springeth, for it strikes
Upon her troubled ear again,
And his breath in louder fetches,
Travels from his lungs in pain;
And his eyes are fixing upward,
On some face beyond the room;
And the blackness of the spoiler
From his cheek hath chased the bloom.

Never more his "Now I lay me"
Will be said from mother's knee;
Never more, among the clover,
Will he chase the humble-bee.
Through the night she watched her darling,
Now despairing, now in hope;
And about the break of morning
Did the angels take him up!

Useful Hints.

The Proper Uses of Ice.—In health no one ought to drink ice water, for it has occasioned fatal inflamation of the stomach and bowels, and sometimes sudden death. The temptation to drink it is very great in Summer; to use it at all with any safety the person should take but a single swallow at a time, take the glass from the lips half a minute, and another swallow, and so on. It will be found that in this way it becomes disagreeable after a few mouthfuls. On the other hand, ice itself may be taken as freely as possible, not only without injury but with most striking advantage in dangerous forms of disease. If broken in sizes of a pea or bean, and swallowed as freely as practicable, without much chewing or crushing between the teeth, it will often be sufficient in checking various kinds of diarrhœa, and has cured various cases of Asiatic cholera. A kind of cushion of powdered ice kept to the entire scalp, has allayed a violent inflamation of the brain and arrested fearful convulsions induced by too much blood there. Water as cold as ice can make it, applied freely to the throat, neck and chest with a sponge or cloth, very often affords an almost miraculous relief, and if this be followed by drinking copiously of the same ice-cold element, the wetted parts wiped dry and the child wrapped up well in the bed clothes, it falls into delightful slumber. All inflamation, internal or external, is promptly subdued by the application of ice or ice water, because it is converted into steam and rapidly conveys away the extra heat, and also diminishes the quantity of blood in the vessels of the part. A piece of ice laid on the wrist will often arrest violent bleeding of the nose. To drink any ice-cold liquids at meals retards digestion, chills the body, and has been known to induce the most dangerous internal congestion. If ice is put in milk or in butter, and these are not used at the time, they lose their freshness and become sour and stale; for the essential nature of both is changed when once frozen and then thawed.

Hall's Journal of Health.

To Remove Freckles.—You may generally remove freckles without using cosmetics, (which are oftentimes dangerous by reason of their containing mineral agents) by merely stimulating the absorbent vessels of the skin to take them up and carry them away as refuse. Any smart stimulant will act in this way; but it has been found that the safest are taken from the vegetable kingdom. One of the best and easiest is the lotion made of a tea-cupful of sour milk and a small quantity of scraped horse-radish; let this stand from six to twelve hours, then use it to wash the parts affected twice or thrice a day.—Exchange Paper.

Flowers for Winter—Prepare in Summer.—In your wood rambles this Summer, select a few nice pine cones, and when the seeds have fallen out, sprinkle grass seed, or seeds of any small shooting plants, in the openings of the cone, and set it in a wine glass half filled with water, and in a little time you will have a beautiful tuft of green. A sprinkle of earth in the cone with the seed will aid in nourishing the plants.

Selected Tale.

THE WHALEMAN'S YARN.

AN INCIDENT OF HAWAII.

It was one of those rare and beautiful moonlight nights seen only on the Pacific, when sea and air were dazzling with the glory of the tropics, and the land breeze bore on its wings the perfume of wild roses and sandalwood, that our good ship like a sea-bird weary of its distant flight, folded its snowy pinion within the coral reefs of Waiakea, in the Island of Hawaii. My eyes weary of gazing out upon the endless waste of heaving waters, now hailed the blessed sight of the green land for the first time in three months, for we had been scouring the broad ocean in search of Leviathan. I felt as if I never could tire of feasting my vision on the bold outlines of the land, as it receded from the shore, and rose in towering peaks to the skies. Most conspicuous among those were the rugged forms of Mouna Loa and her fiery sister, Kilawea, as they reared their gloomy heads aloft and frowned upon the peaceful cocoanut groves below. But not alone had the bold landmarks attractions for me, for I had gazed longingly upon the softer features of the landscape—the meadow patches and taro fields, through which flowed many a bright stream, reflecting the calm moonlight,—and upon picturesque cottages slumbering beneath clusters of waveless palms.

The anchor watch had been set, and the crew with that exception had all turned in, anticipating a glorious ramble on the morrow. Jack Stansbury and myself were alone in occupation of the deck. For a long time neither of us had spoken, for my old shipmate seemed to be busy with his own thoughts.

I too, was so much absorbed in contemplation of the rare scene before me, that I cared not to disturb his reveries. Leaning against the forward rigging I drank in the delicious odors from the shore; and giving license to my dreamy fancies, was soon roaming among the palm groves and amidst the hills, listening to the music of the many cascades that leaped among the rocks and joined the streams in the plain; then I wandered in unfrequented valleys and gathered cocoanuts and wild oranges, and then taking a bridle-path down into the fiery orifices of Mouna Loa and Kilawea, and heard the awful surges of molten waves.

I know not how long I should have remained in the enjoyment of these waking dreams had not my comrad who had aroused himself from his own wandering thoughts placed his hand upon my shoulder and with a rough but kindly voice exclaimed:

'Ahoy, shipmate! what are you thinking about? I have watched you for an hour and were it not that your eyes were staring wide open, I would have sworn that you were dreaming; for during the whole of that time you havn't moved a peg.—Thinking of home and mother, my boy?'

'No, Jack,' I replied, 'my thoughts at that instant were far from home—they were up among those green groves, and beyond among the hills and mountains.'

'What, away up the old fire mountain yonder?' and the old whaleman pointed to the distant Kilawea, over whose huge crater there rested a vapory cloud, that was sharply defined against the clear moonlit sky, and reflected a faint reddish glare down upon the side of the mountain.

'Aye Jack,' I answered, "I have wandered even there to-night, in imagination, and have looked down into the burning sea, that I have heard break upon its lava cliffs. But I presume Jack, you have heard all about it."

'Heard, boy!—ay, I've seen it; and have cause to remember it? to my latest hour. Heard of it? Even now I can see the horrid gulf and hear that shriek of terrible despair which rang in my ears there many years ago—even now I can see,—' and the old man covered his eyes with his horny palms, as if he would gladly shut out some fearful vision—and then wiping away a few briny tears, continued,—'even now I can see the agonized expression of that upturned face. Ah, my lad, it's a frightful memory, and I rarely permit myself to talk of it.'

'But Jack,' said I, whose curiosity had been greatly excited by my comrad's words, 'please spin me that yarn.'

'Charley, my lad, I have not told that story for years; but where and when could I find a more suitable place to relate it than here, where we can catch the red vapers up yonder, while we talk.

I took the seat by his side and the old boatsteerer commenced:

'It is now about thirty years ago since I sailed out of the harbor of Bristol, R. I. on board the old whale ship Ann,—one of the prizes of the privateer 'Yankee.' She was a heavy, old fashioned English ship, which had been built at Bombay of teak-wood, and was at best a dull sailer; but on a wind she made as much leeway as head was, and any land lubber, with even half an eye, could see that she lacked almost every sailing quality. But then she had capacity for stowage, and in those days, when whales were plentier than now, a cargo hold was more regarded than long legs. I am thus particular in speaking of the old ship, as it was owing to her bad sailing qualities that the unhappy incident I am about to relate occurred.

'We had entered upon the sperm ground by the way of the Cape of Good Hope, for Captain Bradford well knew that we would never be able to work the old craft round the horn, against the baffling winds and currents that prevail there. We ran down pleasantly enough before the southwest trades, and entered the pacific best foot foremost. For several months we knocked about the whaling grounds with first rate luck, and had already almost half a cargo of oil, when the fish suddenly disappeared, making it necessary to change our ground and as our course lay within a few degrees of the Sandwich Islands, the captain concluded to make the land for a supply of provisions and water.

'Now it so happened that we came into this harbor, and in rounding that reef out yonder, with a good southwesterly breeze, the old tub made so much more leeway than she had ever before been credited for, that she almost went head on, before we could wear ship. We escaped by the skin of our teeth; but the rudder, striking the coral rocks, was so badly damaged that it made it necessary to remain in port several days to repair it.

This delay was improved by the crew, who were permitted to explore the Island, and amuse themselves in such other ways as they might choose. Bill Manchester and myself therefore employed a couple of Kanakas, and started on a visit to that burning mountain up yonder. We had heard a good deal about it, and its frightful crater and were curious to see it. The Kanakas shook their heads when we asked them about it, and advised us not to make the attempt; but our minds were made up and go we would; and after some trouble in finding two of them, who for large reward promised to guide us, we commenced the journey. As you set here my boy and look up to the mountain you would imagine it to be but a few hours journey; but we were two long and weary days in reaching the lower edge of the lava.

Up to this distance we continued to meet with natives whose cottages occupied the groves of breadfruit and cocoanuts of the mountain, and among which we had no difficulty in procuring food for ourselves and guides.

After we had passed this point, we frequently found it necessary to cross deep ravines and rents of the mountain, from which issued suffocating vapors and steam, convincing us of our near approach to the crater; and at length on the afternoon of the third day, there suddenly burst upon our astonished vision, the most terrific scene that mortal eyes ever gazed upon! I tell you, my lad, you can never have a just conception of a certain unmentionable place down below, till you have been up yonder. Down deep in the bowels of the earth, gaped a terrible vortex, leagues in circumference, where a sea of fire rolled its frightful billows and dashed its burning spray far up among the cliffs, over which we leaned. But the entire crater was not thus in a state of ebullition; for the bottom of it exhibited islands and wide peninsulars of solid lava, which our Kanaka guides informed us we might safely approach and stand upon their beachy shores; while the molten wave broke with a heavy, sullen roar against them.

We gazed with indescribable sensations upon this sublime and awful demonstration of the power of the great architect, and felt that the weak wretch, who denies the existence of a God, need only to stand where we then stood, to blush and tremble at his senseless arrogance. But if such were our sentiments, when we gazed upon this frightful spectacle, while a tropical sun mingled his beams with the fiery spray what were they when the gloom of night settled over the wild scene, and only the pale stars twinkled down into the lurid abyss. Then the transcending horrors of that seething sea of lava were revealed to us in all their frightful sublimity.

We stood that night on a broken pile of lava, heaped upon the edge of the barrier cliff, as I have seen vast piles of ice-blocks heaped upon the rock-bound coast of the northern sea. As we saw it thus by its own sulphurus light, our emotions were such as human tongue has yet never found language to express. I can only say they were made up of sentiments which I never experienced before.

All that night we gazed wonderingly upon the fiery scene, and watched the many changes that awful chasm assumed. At times the centre of some lava island would swell up into a conical shape, and suddenly bursting open, eject a column of fiery fluid, for hundreds of feet into the air. This would immediately be followed by a jet of sulphury steam, rushing forth with a thundering sound that filled the gulf, and echoed with a startling effect from cliff to cliff around that frightful amphitheatre. Again the fiery column would succeed, one thus alternating with the other for hours. Again, when some vast cake rolled its burning breakers against its rocky banks, an undermined portion would fall with a fearful crash into the deep, scattering the fiery billows to the skies, and causing the molten mass to surge against the cliff again, even as I have seen the Indian sea lifted, as it were, from its foundation, by the power of the awful typhoon. While our eyes were fixed upon these terrible exhibitions, other phenomena would be transpiring in other portions of the huge crater; and until the light of day suddenly peeped over the edge of the Pacific, my comrade and myself were so engrossed with the strange sights and sounds, that we had taken no note of the flying hours. The wonders of that night can never be effaced from my memory; but not so vividly are they impressed upon my mind, as the thrilling scene of the following day.

Weary of excitement, we now descended the mountain to the nearest grove; and after a hearty breakfast of poe and baked pig, which our Kanakas had provided for us, we spread our blankets under the shade of the palms and were soon dreaming off the morning hours. Again I visited, in my sleep, the fiery gulf we had just left, and again all its phenomena were re-enacted. I dreamed I walked over its burning surface unscathed, and leaped from crest to crest of its surging billows. I thought my comrade was with me, and in the many changing phases of my dream, we found ourselves sailing in a native canoe over the lava sea, far out among the islands; and when we attempted to return, our craft suddenly burst forth into flames beneath us. I leaped from the burning prow to an islet of solid lava; but poor Manchester, I thought, was chained to his seat, and could not escape. Swiftly the flames gathered about him till the boat was consumed; and then I beheld him sink slowly down into that burning sea, calling on me continually to save him, till at last with a fearful cry he sank forever beneath the boiling surges.

On waking from this terrible nightmare I found my friend had risen, and was already engaged in preparations to return to the foot of the mountain. But our guides now offered, for an additional fee of a clasp knife each, to conduct us into the interior of the crater. They said it was a feat performed by almost every visitor they had ever accompanied up the mountain. Manifesting a desire to obtain some of the Pele hair, as the lava tread is called by the islanders, after their goddess of the volcano, and of which I had heard so much, he reluctantly yielded.

'We soon gained the spot where we had passed the night, and after waiting here awhile to recover breath, we began to enter the dangerous path that led to the bottom of the crater. For hundreds of feet we clambered along over broken masses of lava, and upon narrow ridges, where a mis-step or a crumbling stone might hurl us headlong into the fiery pit below, or down into some gaping crevices, where thousands of feet down in the cimmerian darkness we could hear the mutterings of pent-up thunders, till, after many bruises and much labor, we stood upon the shore of the boiling lava. Here we again stopped to rest ourselves upon the rocks, gazed over the now apparently limitless crater. For some moments neither of us spoke, so completely were we engaged with our own thoughts; for, to tell the truth, that horrid morning dream was annoying me. At length my comrade broke the silence by asking, in a half serious, half jocular tone:

"I say, Stansbury, do you believe in dreams?

'That sudden question, which sounded so like an echo of my own thoughts, startled me for the instant; and as I looked up to my friend's face inquiringly, I detected an expression of such seriousness there that I checked the careless reply I was about to make, and evaded a direct answer by inquiring 'why he asked so singular a question?'

"I am not superstitious,' said he, 'but I had a dream down yonder in the palm grove this morning, which, to tell the truth, has troubled me ever since; and that is the reason I objected at first to visit here. And then, to my astonishment he repeated a perfect duplicate of my own dreadful vision. The coincidence, to say the least, was extraordinary, and even then I was almost constrained to regard it as prophetic. Soon I knew it to be so.—Then I attempted to explain it away, more however to convince my friend than myself, by attributing it to our exciting night watch upon the edge of the crater, followed by our hasty breakfast, more particularly of the pasty poe.

'Manchester received this explanation with a slight acknowledgement, but still I could perceive by his anxious expression that he was not altogether satisfied with it. After a few moments, therefore, I proposed to reascend the crater, and return to the shore. But this he now objected to; and with a forced laugh sprang to his feet, and led the way out upon the congealed lava. I tried to persuade him to return, but he did not heed my warning words. I then followed after him and attempted to force him gently back, promising to obtain the specimens I had come for, and then rejoin him on the rocks. But as if determined to test the truth of that terrible dream, he persisted in accompanying me; and knowing it would be useless to argue the point with him longer, we started out together on the novel exploration.

'The surface soon became painful to our feet and in fact scorched the soles of our shoes; and the gurgling noises of the liquid lava, beneath the yielding crust, warned us that we were treading on dangerous ground; on all hands of us columns of steam and gases, whose pungent odors were almost suffocating, were issuing from deep rents and crevices, while beyond a narrow bank of indurated and broken lava, which the active and fearless guides reached in advance of us, lay a lake of fire at least a mile in length.

It was of an oblong, roundish shape; and at one end of this veritable lake of fire and brimstone the molten lava flowed in gentle undulations, like the waves of the sea, after the subsidence of a summer breeze, while the other extremity raged in an angry mood and dashed its red surges in fiery spray to the sky. From the centre of this vast lake there rose thick and black columns of sulphurous smoke, and as the wind rushed past us to fill the vacuum, caused by the intense heat, it roared like thunder; while the crumbling bank on which we stood, cracked and trembled beneath as if in the throes of an earthquake. These frightful indications of danger, together with the roasting heat and painful glare, were more than I could endure, and grasping the hand of my companion, I turned from the fiery prospect and was about to move towards the margin of the crater.

At this moment Manchester chanced to observe a bunch of hair attached to the very edge of the bank on which we were standing; and withdrawing his hand, and shading his eyes from the heat, he ran towards the spot. Scarcely had he reached it, however, and stretched forward to gather it, than to my horror—I perceived a wide portion of the rock separated from that where we had been standing the instant before, by a narrow seam, from which rose innumerable little jets of steam. His weight, while I gazed upon it, unable for an instant to articulate. At length I found my voice, and venturing to the edge of the glowing opening, I shouted to him to spring for his life. He heard my voice, and with the specimen in his hand, turned towards me. But just as he reached the widening chasm, and was about to leap for the firm rock, where I stood, a convulsive throe of the mass threw him from his feet. Tossing the tuft of Pele's hair towards me, he attempted to regain his standing position; but the inclination of the fragment was now too great to permit this, and he essayed to reach the edge by creeping on his hands and knees. But oh! the effort was vain; the burning gap rapidly increasing, and on the other side the treacherous rock was being swallowed by the melted lava! Motionless with horror, I watched his terrible fate—unable to render the smallest aid. Ah! Charley, I see now that last despairing gaze the poor fellow fixed upon my face, as with one more awful convulsion the huge mass, undermined by the lave tide, surged out into the boiling deep, bearing my comrade clinging to its surface. Even now I can hear that agonized shriek, as it rang out over that fiery sea, and was echoed back again by the crater cliffs.

I knew no more till I found myself half way up the crater, where I had been borne by the faithful Kanakas. By my side lay the tuft of Pele's hair, that had cost the life of my friend. Too literally had our fearful dream been realized.'

Position in Sleep.

For the mass of mankind, trained as mankind are now, reclining on the right seems to be the most favorable position for securing sound sleep. It is especially adapted to favor digestion, as it gives freedom to the movements of the stomach, while the work of chymification is going on. They who from any cause whatever are feeble, will do well to heed this suggestion.

Many individuals, I know, both from habit and otherwise, prefer the left side.—I have known a few feeble persons of this description. I think, however, even those would do well to make an exchange and gradually accustom themselves to the right side, as being physiologically the most correct.—Alcott's Laws of Health.

The Stomach.

I firmly believe that almost every malady of the human frame is either highways or by-ways, connected with the stomach. The woes of every other member are founded on your belly timber; and I must own I never see a fashionable physician mysteriously consulting the pulse of his patient but I feel a desire to exclaim—"Why not tell the gentleman at once, 'Sir, you have eaten too much; you've drunk too much; and you have not taken exercise enough!'" The human frame was not created imperfect. It is ourselves who have made it so. There exists no donkey in creation so overloaded as our stomachs.—Sir F. Head.

In an attempt this year, of Colonel Washington with 400 Virginia troops under his command, to drive the French intruders from the Ohio, they were attacked by 900 French and a large body of Indians and after a vigorous defence, capitulated on condition of being allowed to return back to Virginia.

On the reception of the news of Colonel Washington's defeat in England, the British Court not only remonstrated to the French Court against the conduct of their officers in America, but also began to prepare the more effectual means of redress. The navy and army were put on a war footing, in part and an expedition planned to protect the colonies against further intrusion of the French; of which intention Rhode Island had early information, for at the January session of the Assembly 1755, an act passed to raise 100 men for his Majesty's service and also to provide fresh provisions &c., for the troops expected from Europe in the spring.

The Assembly met in February when they incorporated Benjamin Sherburne and others as a troop of horse in the town of Newport. They also enacted a new militia law and ordered 400 men to be raised for his Majesty's service as soon as his Majesty's order for that purpose should be received. In March the Assembly met again and having received the order of the King for that purpose, 400 men were ordered to be immediately raised.

The Assembly met at Newport on Tues.

Stephen Brownell,	Robert Lawton,
Jeremiah Lippitt,	Wm. Richmond,

Thos. Richardson, Treasurer.

The Deputies from Newport were: Edward Scott, Thos. Cranston, Peter Bourse, Job Bennet, James Sheffield, William Read.

The election this year was carried on with great heat on both sides. The Governor, Deputy Governor and four Assistants of the old prox were left out of office and Governor Greene did not appear to preside in the Grand Committee at the election. This struggle laid the foundation of a long and acrimonious political division of parties in Rhode Island. Governor Hopkins was most popular in the North part of the colony. The Greene's and Wards in the towns south, especially in Newport; this division of parties continued for many years and political animosity rose to the highest possible degree of acrimony, creating divisions in neighborhoods and even in families.

The re-building and enlarging of Fort George was determined on by the Assembly, the town of Newport offered to contribute toward the undertaking and the Assembly granted ten thousand pound old tenor for that purpose, provided the town of Newport, on their own proper account, would also contribute five thousand pounds towards the same object.

The expedition against the French on the Ohio was deemed by the ministry the most important, and 1500 regulars under General Braddock, sailed from Cork and arrived at Virginia early in the spring.—The French also sent a powerful fleet of 20 sail of the line and an army of 4000 men from Canada, most of which arrived safe. Although both nations were pushing their forces into America, each trying to swallow up the province of the other no declaration of war was made. Rhode Island had already ordered her full quota of troops, but in September the Assembly ordered 200 more men to be raised and sent to Crown Point, from the four regiments of militia and the following proportions were established for all future drafts of men whatever might be the number required.

The Regiment of the county of Newport seventy.

The Regiment of the county of Providence, 52.

The Regiment of the county of Kings County, 48.

The Regiment of the County of Kent, 27.

The sum of £600,000 old tenor, was issued, to enable the treasury to meet the extraordinary demands of the colony.

SATURDAY MORNING, AUGUST 13, 1859.

ARMISTICE, peace, preliminaries of peace, peace to be made, if made at all, at Zurich by the plenipotentiaries of France and Austria, these are the stages by which this remarkable war is to be brought to a close. There was a prospect, at a certain time, that some good might come from this argument of Kings as it was carried on in the battlefield, to be set down as the proper and direct result of that kind of reasoning. And perhaps it is too soon yet to conclude, that humanity will gain nothing to compensate in any degree for what has been lost. It may be that remote consequences will not resemble the immediate effects, in being so deplorably destitute of any thing to justify the rulers of France and Austria for what they have done.

The changes (if any) which shall be made, though not for the better, are nevertheless changes—and as such are truly so many admissions of pre-existing evil. And as the acknowledgement comes from the wrong-doer, it is a sign of some reformation in that quarter where reformation is most needed. This may be worth something as an example in future. Increased attention has been drawn to national rights, and the nations have additional reasons for seeking the redress of national wrongs.—The mischief of bad governments is no longer entirely concealed. The responsibility of bad rulers is confessed. This is an age of too much thought and reflection, not to profit by the examples of the past, and not to know the bearing which the present will have upon the future.—It is the nineteenth century. More and more as it advances, it crowns the people, and consecrates humanity. ALEXANDER of Russia has discovered the need of amelioration among his serfs; let JOSEPH of Austria and LOUIS of France, imitate so good an example.

There is such a thing as righteous indignation. Sometimes all Europe partakes of this feeling. And the man upon whom the eyes of all are turned with horror, is not to be envied, though he may be called Emperor. The reader may recollect HAYNAU, who once desolated Lombardy, and set up a gallows in Hungary.—He caused a woman to be flogged under the same tree from which her strangled son and husband were hanging. If the inviolability of life should be respected, he is not innocent whose slaughter is reckoned by thousands, and for whom a forest of trees could hardly be found sufficient to represent half the number that was slain in the pending war, and all for no good purpose, perhaps. But it was not her own barbarous treatment that turned the poor woman's heart to stone. It was the loss of her friends. To be sure, HAYNAU was neither Emperor nor Pontiff. But NERO was both.

The so called treaty of Villa Franca, in which there is so much to fear and so little to hope, is only of a preliminary nature, to be reduced to a general settlement of all matters in dispute between the two Emperors, Sardinia being left to conclude peace by an "additional act," as well as she may be able. It is a pity that there is no great power in Europe, disposed to help so good a cause. Must Italian Independence be at last abandoned to another Austrian invasion? It is not possible to answer this question before the treaty of Zurich shall be definitely concluded, if indeed it will be possible to place much reliance upon any stipulation between such parties. Their Majesties respectively agreed at Villa Franca to "encourage" the creation of an Italian Confederation, with the Pope as honorary president. That Lombardy as far as the [illegible] a part of the Confedera-tion, though remaining under the crown of Austria. That the Grand Duke of Tuscany and the Duke of Modena, should return and grant a general amnesty. And that "the two Emperors will call upon the Holy Father to introduce indispensable reforms into his States."

The Italians are now in the greatest fermentation, and if really left to themselves, would soon work themselves clear of some grievances. GARIBALDI is reported to be now contemplating a move from the Alps to the Appenines, from Northern to Central Italy. It is expected that there will be a gathering in Romagna of a body of about fifty thousand volunteers; and that when these are joined with GARIBALDI's soldiers, and those under MEZZOCAPO, they will constitute an army capable of securing the independence of Central Italy, against any Roman or Neapolitan or other force belonging properly to the Peninsula, that could be mustered in opposition. But whether this liberation of the Papal States can be effected, under the growling of the Austrian fortresses in the historic quadrangle, may well be doubted.

The war is said to be over—and yet peace is not made. A lasting peace cannot be made without some remedy for the actual cause of the war. The rulers, whether lay or ecclesiastical, will not be reconciled to the people, or the people to the rulers, without some important change. If a popular foundation should not be laid, the superstructure will not stand.—The unchanging and unchangeable policy of governments can only be maintained by force. And mere force against their will—unless the people are too ignorant to know their rights—is not likely to secure perpetual submission. It is not conservative of peace. And hence in all such cases where the people are intelligent and think for themselves, a government of force is entirely dependent upon the obedience of standing armies. But a prince that does this, ought not also to claim to be the great Father of Christendom. It is not the Church, but a great European scandal that has been so long upheld by the bayonet.

THE Scientific Convention which has been in session at Springfield recently, closed its session on Tuesday last. The next meeting, in August 1860, will be held in this city, where attraction and comfort will help to make their meeting agreeable. The officers of the Society are:—President, ISAAC LEE, of Philadelphia; Vice President, P. A. GOULD, JR., of Cambridge; Secretary, JOSEPH LECONTE, of Columbia, S. C.; Treasurer, A. L. ELWYN, of Philadelphia. The Springfield Republican gives them a pleasant good-bye and says—"Socially the week has a very pleasant one. The people have been pleased with the savans and the savans with the people, and the latter, we believe, will carry away with them agreeable recollections of our rural city and its inhabitants. It has been a red letter week with our belles. There has been a 'Young America' among the Scientific Corps and some very pretty flirtations have been in progress. Whether there shall be in consequence thereof any additions to the catalogue of double stars, socially speaking, or any tracks made that will last longer than those of Dr. HITCHCOCK's ancient birds, we cannot tell, for we are not prophetic.

WE have received from R. J. TAYLOR, Esq., a capital article for making puddings, pies, &c., at a very small cost. The article is known as DURYEA's Maizena. The manufacturer has gained a name by the introduction of a celebrated Starch, which possesses extra qualities for its purity, whiteness and strength.

As we had supposed, the alarm of invasion was greater in England after peace had been projected between France and Austria, than it had been at any time during the progress of hostilities. The debates in Parliament and leading articles in the daily press, show a feverish uneasiness in the unprepared condition of the army and navy. There were evident apprehensions from abroad, and not a little distrust of the people at home. A plan of defense was thought to be necessary in advance of the attack. Some said it might be well, in such an emergency, for the members of Parliament to appoint a dictator and go home. But who would be the man for the occasion? He should not be one, as was said, who would allow it to be debated, whether London should be defended or not. Nor one who would march out of one end of the city, while the enemy was entering the other. The most splendid booty in the world, or that ever was in the world, should not be left without some person in the office of command, to give the necessary order in the event of invasion.

A plan of defense was demanded, because both France and Austria were irritated against England and Prussia. Austria was sore with the loss of Lombardy; and France, with failing to gain Venetia, as equally independent with the other members of the Italian confederation. It was uncertain whether England or Prussia would be the first object of attack; but in either case, the other would be interested in the common cause. A plan of defense was demanded for Englishmen at home, as well as Englishmen abroad. Both France and Austria confess that they have a quarrel with England and Prussia; and the fact will not fail to be manifested in something more than words, when the proper time is supposed to have arrived. Lord LYNDHURST, in his place in the House of Lords, declares still, that he will not trust the promises of any power, and will not rely in particular on the Emperor of the French.

But the London Times seems to place great confidence in what is stated in the French Moniteur, as the intention of the Emperor—to reduce the Army and Navy of France to a peace establishment. In other words, to disarm. But this paragraph in the Moniteur does not seem to have any considerable effect upon the Bourse. Stocks rose a little at first, but soon fell again nearly to the same point.—The Emperor is withdrawing his troops from Italy, and placing them, as a peace establishment of course, upon the Rhine. It is not likely that he will be the first to disarm, whatever the government print may publish as his intention. That announcement may have been made, in order to ascertain how such a measure would be received by the Army and Navy, or by the nation generally. Or it may have been made to prevent the alarm over the channel from leading the English government to make the necessary preparation for defence.

The morality of Princes and Courtiers is at a remarkably low ebb in Europe. If morality has advanced anywhere else, it does not appear to have made any progress in that quarter. Lord LYNDHURST, as the times are, is probably right in placing the safety of the British Islands only on the ability that may exist to defend them, and not on the declarations or promises of any European ruler whatever—and least of all on any one of them that cannot rely upon himself. It may be that LOUIS NAPOLEON had the best intentions in the commencement of the Italian war; but, if he had, he found that he could not trust himself to fulfill them; and it would not be strange if no other government should after this consider him worthy of the least consideration in a moral point of view. KOSSUTH did [illegible] further than what might be [illegible] to that extent. He was not worthy of confidence [illegible] least reliable form of government [illegible] he is a scatter-brained adventurer.

"On Thursday last the number of bathers at the beach was larger than on any former occasion during a period of five years. The hotels and the boarding houses are all full, and were it not that numbers are continually going as well as coming, the fresh arrivals could not be accommodated. The "Autocrat," now the "Professor of the Breakfast Table," is the guest of Charles E. Norton, Esq., of Cambridge, at his villa on Webster street. Gov. Chase of Ohio is at the Bellevue. The belle of Baltimore is the most fascinating of the many lovely women I have met here. The most graceful rider, now noted for her skill in managing a spirited horse, now stopping at the Ocean House, is from the same city. The "Autocrat" has dilated on the canvas-backs and oysters of Baltimore; you will observe that my fancy takes a higher flight. A few evenings since a gentleman won fifteen hundred dollars at the Tiger's before supper, and after supper lost it all. The same day a water party, comprising five gentlemen, managed to put under cover three bottles (not pts.) of champagne, two of claret, one of whiskey, et cetera. They all returned in high spirits, declaring there was no place like Newport for a jolly good time."—Corr. of Prov. Jour.

The week has been a very lively one, and the place is now crammed full. Every day brings up something pleasing in the way of amusement, and it is riding or bathing, or excursions over the water, following in quick succession, leaving one barely time to keep up with the excitement. Bellevue Avenue of late has become the favorite drive, and there every afternoon, when there is not some novelty to attract them elsewhere, hundreds of splendid turn-outs are seen. At the hotels there is music and dancing daily; and in the cottages dinner companies and evening entertainments. The fort has been thrown open on stated days, and the driving public is sure to be there, and on Tuesday the yacht fleet, numbering thirty-five vessels, arrived in our harbor. For a few days the harbor and bay were enlivened by the presence of these beautiful vessels, but yesterday they all took their departure to the Eastward. Newport has not been so prosperous in years as at the present time, and since 1854 we have not had so large a crowd, which will be greatly increased when the absent sons and daughters, who are expected home in a few days, have arrived. On Thursday there was a scrub-race by the yacht squadron. The wind was light throughout the day, and but little opportunity was afforded to test their sailing qualities. The prizes, amounting to $300, were awarded in equal amounts to the Restless, Madgie, Narragansett and Plover. Many guests were invited to Fort Adams by Col. MAGRUDER, to witness the sport, and before he allowed them to return they were regaled with refreshments, and had an opportunity of witnessing a review. Later in the day the fort was thrown open to the crowd and the number of vehicles was large. In the evening there was a concert, and after that a hop at the Atlantic House.

THERE has been a very general want, both by our citizens and by strangers, of a correct map of Newport on a large scale, and we are pleased to find this want supplied. Mr. DRIPP, of New York has published a map of the city, which measures five feet in length, and two and a half in width, showing every street, the location of every house in the city and every building and place of interest is designated. The portions of the city which are sparcely settled are also shown and the name of the person owning the land, which is an excellent guide for those who wish to purchase building lots.—In short it is a complete map and should be found in every house and place of business in the city. TILLEY is the general agent.

AT the request of the Committee of Arrangements for the Re-union on the 23d of August, I hereby extend an invitation to all the absent sons and daughters of the Island of Rhode Island to visit this city and participate in the re-union of the 23d inst. All are requested to call at the Common Council Chamber in the City Hall, immediately on their arrival, and register their names in a book prepared for that purpose.

WILLIAM H. CRANSTON,
Chairman Committee of Arrangements.

THE Sons of Newport at Brooklyn, N. Y., are making preparations for the re-union, and at a meeting held on Monday evening last at the Phenix Insurance Company office, WM. H. DOUGLAS was called to the chair, and JOHN C. DAVIS chosen Secretary. We learn that the meeting was well attended, and during the evening speeches were made by WALTER NICHOLS, BENJAMIN J. BRENTON, PHILANDER SHAW, JAMES E. BRENTON, T. P. NICHOLS and others. The following resolutions were then unanimously adopted:—

Resolved, That the sons of Newport residing in the city of Brooklyn and its vicinity, cheerfully accept the invitation of the local committee, and will attend the re-union on the 23d inst.

Resolved, That Walter Nichols, Esq., be appointed to respond to the address of welcome by the Mayor of Newport, in behalf of the sons of Newport represented by this meeting.

Among those who were in attendance were—W. H. Douglas, Andrew Cahoon, Philander Shaw, Benjamin J. Brenton, Walter Nichols, J. C. Davis, W. L. Northam, George Bowen, W. B. Bliss, Oliver H. Perry, Thomas Stacy, James E. Brenton, Thomas P. Nichols, Benjamin Bryer, Stephen Cahoon, Cornelius Wilbour, F. B. Wilbour, Irving Atkinson, W. C. Davis and others.

COL. BEALS & SONS are in the city making arrangements for decorating buildings on the 23d. They have taken the store opposite the Mercury office, and early next week will have a large quantity of bunting in store. At the Plymouth celebration Messrs. BEALS decorated the streets for more than two miles in length, and the press in noticing the day, spoke very highly of the manner in which they performed their work. We hope our merchants and citizens generally, will engage the services of these gentlemen, as thousands of people will visit the city on the 23d, and our streets should present a holiday appearance. Orders left at this office or at the store of Messrs. BEALS will be attended to.

WE learn that the Pawtucket Light Guard have decided by a unanimous vote, to accept the invitation extended to them by the Newport Artillery, to visit this city on the 23d inst.

FACTS IN PHYSIOLOGY.—A man is taller in the morning than at night to the extent of half an inch, owing to the relaxation of the cartilages. The human brain is the twenty-eighth of the human body, but in the horse but a four-hundredth. Ten days per annum is the average sickness of human life. About the age of 36, the lean man generally becomes fatter, and the fat man leaner. Ritcher enumerates 600 distinct species of disease in the eye. The pulse of children is 180 in a minute; at puberty it is 80; and at 60, only 60. Dr. Lettom ascribed health and wealth to water; happiness to small beer; and all diseases and crime to the use of spirits. Elephants live for two hundred, three hundred, and even four hundred years. A healthy, full grown elephant, consumes thirty pounds of grain per day. Bats in India are called flying foxes, and measure six feet from tip to tip. Sheep, in wild pastures, practice self-defence by an array in which rams stand foremost, in concert with ewes and lambs, in the centre of a hollow square. Three Hudson's Bay dogs draw a sledge, loaded with 300 lbs., fifteen miles per day. One pair of pigs will increase in six years to 119,163, taking the increase at fourteen times per annum. A pair of sheep, in the same time, would be but 64. A single female horsefly produces in one season 20,080,320 eggs. The flea, grasshopper and locust jump 200 times their own length, equal to a quarter of a mile for a man.

QUAKER SARCASM.—Thomas Coles—more familiarly known from his great amiability and good nature, as Tommy Coles—was a consistent member of the Society of Friends. At the delightful village of Glen Cove, Long Island, where he resided, the Episcopal congregation had just erected in the church a very sweet toned organ, which was the admiration not only of the members, but of many others who were attracted to the service by the eloquence of the Rev. Mr. Mallaby, the rector. On some particular occasion our venerable friend. Tommy Coles took a seat among the congregation, and his opinion of the organ was gathered from the following conversation a few days afterward:

"Friend Mallaby, I am pleased that thee has got a fine organ in thy church."

"But," said the clergyman, "I thought you were opposed to having an organ in a church."

"So I am," replied Friend Tommy; "but then if thee worship the Lord by machinery I would like thee to have a first rate instrument?"

SONS OF NEWPORT.—The adjourned meeting of the Sons of Newport was held last evening at Concert Hall. The President, Mr. Thos. Cook, called the meeting to order, and Alfred Wilson, Esq., was chosen Secretary pro tem.—A committee raised at the last meeting reported that it was impossible for them to make any arrangement to go with Engine Company No. 5, as that company was to leave here on the morning of the 23d, and the Sons of Newport desire to leave here on the 22d, the day previous to the celebration. All who intend going were requested to hand in their names to the committee; the number was supposed to be over 300.

On motion of R. C. Topham, it was voted that the committee have the privilege of making such arrangement as they could for the company to be carried from Fall River to Newport by the steamer Young America.

TIGHT ROPE MADNESS.—Mr. Blondin has again been challenging death to meet him on the tight rope. He crossed and re-crossed between America and Canada the other day, varying his walk by standing upon his head on the rope, hanging therefrom by his heels, his hands, his hands and heels. He laid himself down across the rope and went through the motions of swimming. He laid himself down upon his back, extended the balance pole the length of his arms, and then threw his body over the pole, alighting astride of the rope. He announces that he will next cross with a man on his shoulders.

IT is stated that there are forty-six persons in England who have incomes of £450,000 a year, equal to two millions and a quarter dollars, while four hundred and forty-four persons have incomes ranging from fifty to two hundred and fifty thousand dollars a year, and eight hundred and eleven from twenty-five to fifty thousand. In Ireland there is but one person who has an income of upwards of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and twenty-one have incomes from fifty thousand to two hundred and fifty thousand, and thirty from twenty-[illegible]

NATHANIEL WASHINGTON, the colored boy who upset a boat in a pond at Elmwood, R. I., in which were five boys beside himself, has been held for manslaughter. Two of the boys were drowned. They were all colored. The evidence went to show that the accused with five younger companions were on the pond in a skiff, when he, against the earnest remonstrance of the lads, who reminded him that they could not swim, capsized the boat by standing on the gunwale, and then swam ashore, jeering his drowning comrades with cries that they "would get a bellyfull," and refusing when safe on land to make any effort for their rescue.

PROFESSOR HORSFORD of Cambridge, read before the Scientific Association at Springfield, a paper on the "Alleged Occurrence of Sand in Maple Sugar." The sand is a natural component part of the sugar, and not a fraudulent admixture. Silex is found in the sap of various kinds of wood, and it is found necessary in the manufacture of gunpowder, to take charcoal made from willow twigs, and other selected woods that are free from this quality, and are capable of being reduced to an impalpable powder.

Angelique Duchemine, the daughter and sister of a family of soldiers, who distinguished herself in the war of Napoleon the I., under General Casabianca, and was disabled by a wound received at the siege of Calvi, died recently at the hotel des Invalides in Paris. She had attained the rank of sub-lieutenant, and Napolean III had conferred on her the cross of the legion of honor, and the medal of St. Helena.

ONE of the parties engaged in raising the Russian ships sunk at Sebastopol writes to a friend in Boston in reference to the progress of the work:—'I have raised whole thirteen or fourteen steamers and vessels of various sizes, and broken to pieces and removed fourteen or fifteen more, and the work goes bravely on, and will continue to a successful completion.

THE Rural American hints to fruit growers who suffer from pilferers, the expediency of following the example of a friend of the editor, who secreted an emetic in some of his fruit most exposed, and shortly after, his father, a popular physician, was called to attend some sudden and alarming cases of vomiting.

IN New York there has been formed a Young Men's Early Rising Association, all the members of which are pledged to be up at a certain hour. It originated with about half a dozen men, who, having kept up the habit for some years, were surprised at its beneficial effects, and the success in life of their associates.

GIRLS WANTED.—By the recent census there were only 14,696 females over 18 years of age in San Francisco, while the males over 21 years numbered 38,893. We should think a sense of duty would lead some of the fair population of the Eastern States to do something for the bachelors of California.

PROF. POULTON, who eloped with a boarding-school miss, was put in jail and escaped, was recently caught by her friends, stripped naked, and tarred and feathered. After the operation he was found to be a "horrid object" by a toll-keeper who saw him going home.

PROFITS OF INSURANCE.—The paid up capital of the Fire and Marine insurance Companies of New York is $4,410,000, on which dividends for the last half year have just been declared amounting to $381,000, or about nine per cent. for the half year.

SINGULAR PROPOSAL.—The Plymouth Rock publishes the names of those people who did not help along in the late celebration, and who refused to purchase tickets for the dinner, though abundantly able, and then stole in, to hear the speeches.

Sick Headache, Debility and Indigestion.—Where among all the remedies for these complaints, is there one which so quickly, so effectually, and permanently removes them as the Oxygenated Bitters?

INTERESTING VARIETIES.—The books in the library belonging to the British Museum occupy 12 miles of shelf.—The painting and sculpture galleries of the palace of Versailles extend over six miles.—In the course of three and a half years 270,000 trees were felled in order to get at the gutta percha.—The eyes of needles are punctured by a machine which, superintended by one boy, can punch 20,000 in a day.—A ray of artificial light travels at the rate of 70,000 leagues in a second of time.—Astronomers have given the rate of solar light at 192,500 miles a second.—In the formation of a single locomotive engine there are over 5,000 pieces to be put together, and these require to be as accurately adjusted as the works of a watch.—Every watch consists of at least 202 pieces, employing probably over 200 persons, distributed among 40 trades—to say nothing of tool-makers for all these.—Gas lighting was unknown in 1800; it was not until two years after this that Murdock made his first public exhibition of it in London. Since that time his discovery has encircled the globe. In Europe and this country all the principal cities and many large towns are lighted with it; and even New Zealand villages, where no white man had built his residence in 1800, are now illuminated by the same subtile and beautiful agent of human comfort and happiness.—Every pound of cochineal contains 70,000 insects, boiled to death; 700,000 pounds are annually used for scarlet and crimson dyes.—The odorous matter of flowers is inflammable, and arises from an essential oil. When growing in the dark their odor is diminished, but restored in the light, and it is strangest in sunny climates. The plant known as the fraxinella takes fire in hot evenings by bringing a flame near its roots.

—At present there is no really successful ventilating and dust-excluding apparatus combinded for railroad cars. Much ingenuity has been displayed, and many patents have been issued for devices for these purposes, but as yet the system needs to be perfected—The national road over the Cumberland Mountains is more extensive and durable than the celebrated Appian Way at Rome—To find the contents of a cask in imperial gallons, gage the bung diameter and multiply its square by 2. To the product add the square of the head diameter, and multiply these by the inside length. Then divide the last product by 1,089 for imperial gallons—The Julian aqueduct of Rome is two miles longer than the Croton aqueduct of New York, but the Croton carries more water than all the seven aqueducts of Rome put together, and more than any other aqueduct in the world, and is longer than any other, excepting the Julian.—The Illinois Central Railroad is the longest line ever constructed by one company, and in point of workmanship is equal to any European road.—The stone arch over Cabin John's Creek, on the Washington aqueduct, is about 50 feet greater than any other stone arch in the world, and is more beautiful in proportion than the arch over the Oca, in Italy, so long celebrated for its magnificence.—The tunnel on the summit of the Pennsylvania Railroad was a more difficult work than the tunnel under the Thames.—The structures on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, at Harper's Ferry, and the Starrucca viaduct on the New York and Erie Railroad, are equal in magnificence to anything Brunel ever did in England, or Moran in France.—

The suspension bridge over the Niagara river, at Lewistown, is 1,042 feet 10 inches in one span, and 43 feet greater than any one single span in the world, being nearly twice as great as the celebrated bridge over the Menai Straits in England—The United States Dry Dock in Brooklyn, is the largest dry dock in the world, by many feet. The plates of iron used in the gates of this dock are the largest that had been made up to the time they were rolled—The estimate originally made by the Belgian engineers for the wear of rails upon their lines, was 120 years. At present ten years is not under the average life of rails, whilst many are actually so much worn in 12 months, as to be no longer fit for use—Boiler explosions are always reported but simple ruptures, which often occur from over pressure, and with no further consequences than the loss of steam and local injury to the boiler, are seldom publicly reported and there are many who are not aware such casualities ever happen—The bark of trees is generally thickest on their northern sides.—Scientific Amer.

OCEAN MAIL SUBSIDIES.—We notice that at a recent meeting of a Select Committee appointed by the British Parliament, Mr. Wilson, M. P., stated in reply to questions, that the sum paid to Mr. Cunard for his contract for carrying the mails between the United States [illegible] £191,000; a sum of £178,000 [illegible] the Galway and Newfoundland contract; making a total of £212,000 for subsidizing the service across the Atlantic, or including the £35,000 paid by Canada to the Quebec line, a sum of nearly £320,000. This sum is equal to £1,600,000. Yet the British Government do not doubt the expediency of continuing this system, or that the advantages acquired are more than an equivalent for this large expenditure in maintaining but a single branch of the mail service.

THE editor of the Rockford (Ill.) Standard, who is a woman, says: "The 'Daughters of Malta' are becoming as distinguished, and seem to be quite as benevolent in their designs, as the 'Sons of Malta.' Their object is said to be to relieve widowers, destitute bachelors, dandies, Hottentots, and orphan male children. By the time the Sons obtain the control of the Island of Cuba, the Daughters confidently expect to subjugate the Isle of Man."

SPIDERS DESTROYING CORN.—The editor of the Evansville Enquirer is informed by some farmers from the townships of German and Center, that the common spider has proved very disastrous to much of the late corn crops; the like has never been known in that part of the country; they have been more fatal than the common ant which has been very annoying.

THE SEA SERPENT CAUGHT.—The Yarmouth Register says that the far-famed sea serpent has lately visited that port, and was chased up a narrow creek and caught. He turned out to be a horse mackeral, measuring over 8 feet in length and weighing 316 pounds.

THE valuation of Fall River the present year is $10,700,250, an increase over last year $776,755. The rate of taxation is $7 on a thousand. The highest valuation is that of the Fall River Iron Works Company, being $880,700, on which the tax is $6154.96.

THE Mount Vernon Fund is to receive a new accession, being two per cent on the nett proceeds of sales which a New York tobacco firm may make out of the "Mount Vernon brand," especially adapted to patriotic chewers.

THE trot on the eclipse Course Wednesday, between Flora Temple and Princess, resulted in the success of Flora Temple. The mile heats were made in 2.23 1-2: 2.22: 2.23 1-2. The time of the second heat is the best on record.

THERE are on earth 1,000,000,000 of inhabitants. Of these 33,333,333 die every year; 7,780 every hour, and 60 every minute—or one in every second. But there are always more births than deaths, and so population increases.

A FIGHT.—There was a severe fight on Tuesday afternoon at Rocky Point, between parties of Fall River and Providence boys, resulting in the whipping of the former and a large number of broken heads.

A DISPATCH from Houston asserts that Gen. Houston is elected Governor of Texas.

FROM EUROPE.—By the steamer Nova Scotian we have four days later news from Europe. Nothing of importance had transpired in relation to the conference at Zurich. It is not known whether Sardinia will be represented.—A despatch from Berne says that representatives of the three powers were expected to meet at the end of July. There was a rumor at Paris that the Emperor Napoleon would visit London. Count Persigny had arrived at Paris from London, and it is said that he took with him assurances that England would give adhesion to the Congress on condition of immediate disarmament. On this condition England had offered to send a representative to the congress. A despatch to the London Post, says that Sardina has named M. des Ambrois as her representative, at the Congress. Austria refuses to meet any Sardinian representative, but will leave it open to Sardinia to accede to the treaty after it shall have been concluded between Austria and France.

The Grand Duke of Tuscany has expressed a willingness to abdicate in favor of his son, but the Tuscans object altogether to the dynasty.

It is reported that 200,000 men are to be discharged from the French army, on renewable furlough.

A complete fusion of Sardinia and Lombardy is to be effected. The Sardinian army is to be raised to 100,000 men by recruits in Lombardy.

Garribaldi has had an interview with General de le Marmora. He has a force of 12,000 men, which continues to increase. It is rumored that the Duke of Modena had proposed to arm 4000 Austrian soldiers, to enable him to enter his States; also that a division of French soldiers will enter Parma and Tuscany, and another corps the Roman legations, to preserve peace, and allow the free expression of thought.

EIGHT CHILDREN AT A BIRTH—Johnson, Trumbull County, O., Aug. 4, 1859.—On the 2d of August Mrs. Timothy Bradley gave birth to eight children—three boys and five girls. They are all living, and are healthy, but quite small. Mr. B.'s family is increasing fast. He was married six years ago to Eunice Mowery, who weighed 273 pounds on the day of their marriage. She has given birth to two pair of twins and now eight more, making twelve children in six years. It seems strange, but nevertheless is true, Mrs. B. was a twin of three, her mother and father both being twins, and her grandmother the mother of five pair of twins.—Mrs. B. has named her boys after noted and distinguished men; One after the Hon. Joshua R. Giddings, who has given her a splendid gold medal; one after the Rev. Hon. Elijah Champlin, who gave her a deed of 50 acres of land and the other after James Johnson, Esq., who gave her a cow. Mr. Bradley says it is profitable to have twins, as the neighbors have clothed the others ever since they were born.—Mr. B. is a poor, industrious laborer, but says he will not part with any of his children while he is able to work.—Corr. of N. Y. Tribune.

BARBARIC TROOPS FOR THE BRITISH ARMY. The adoption of the Zouaves and Turcos into the French army, and their successes against Europeon troops, have incited the British Government to attempt the organization of similar corps from their colonies in the West Indies. Some time ago the black soldiers in Bermuda were uniformed a la Zouave, and we now learn that orders have been issued by the War Department for the transportation of three thousand Jamaica negroes to England. Once arrived, they are to be drilled in the use of the latest and most destructive patterns of small arms, and trained to serve the new rifled cannon. When this first squad has been incorporated with the army it will doubtless be followed by others, until the English will have a black division which will cope, in barbarity and ferocity at least, with the Turcos. In case of war between England and France, it would be curious to see these troops pitted against each other; but they are edged tools which the European Governments may find exceedingly dangerous playthings. Failing an enemy to contend with, they may one day imitate the sepoys, and cut their white masters' throats.

THE BREACH IN THE SOCIETY OF FRIENDS WIDENING.—The disorganizing effects of 'comeouterism,' are spreading among the sect commonly called Quakers, and it is now certain that many have set their faces against the traditions of George Fox and William Penn. The causes of dissension do not very clearly appear, further than that the new lights charge the conservative elders with undertaking to reign, instead of bowing to the Lord, and suffering him to rule and reign. The elders in position, by due succession, charge upon their accusers that they are forward, contumacious, insubordinate and unsanctimonious. The New York yearly meeting has broken fellowship with the New England meeting, and similar disruptions have taken place at Newport, R. I., Scipo, Ferrisburg, Farmington, and Poplar Ridge. The disorganizing spirit exhibited itself first in New York a few years ago. The church in Pennsylvania has thus far refused to enter into friendly correspondence with the bolters. Most serious minded persons outside the pale of the sect will learn with regret of the extension of the dissension in the time-honored organization of Quakers.

THE California overland mail of 15th ult. arrived at St. Louis on Saturday night last. New and promising mines had been discovered in Washo Valley. Crescent City suffered to the amount of $30,000 by a fire on the 9th. One hundred and thirty thousand dollars arrived within a week from Victoria, and the Gazette of that place says $300,000 have been mined in that neighborhood within a year. Frazer River having fallen, mining on the bars was resumed. Salt Lake advices to 13th report Horace Greeley's arrival. At Camp Floyd one Brewer was arrested for having $80,000 in counterfeit government checks on the St. Louis sub-treasury, and Crossman, an engraver, was seized for preparing them. The Mormons are charged with instigating Indian outrages in Humboldt County.

RHODA'S CHILDREN.—New Bedford has shown the good taste to adopt more of the sons and daughters of Rhode Island than she has taken from any other State in the Union, the most of whom have emanated from Newport, from which we infer that the delegation to attend the re-union on the 23d, will be larger than from any other section. So much has this ancient city engrafted herself into our population that we can hardly enter a shop or store but what we find the visit on the 23d to be the topic of conversation.—N. B. Mercury.

ONE of the complaints against the ordinary sewing machines is that they are not adapted for sewing button-holes, and such like work, which must still be done by hand. To meet this deficiency Messrs. E. A. Goodes and E. M. Miller of Philadelphia, Pa., have invented and patented a machine which forms a stitch of novel character, suitable for working button-holes, over-seaming, and for other kinds of work for which it is desirable or necessary for the stitches to pass over an edge.

THE Boston Medical and Surgical Journal gives an account of a case lately treated in the Boston Hospital of a young girl, completely debilitated by the confinement of a milliner's shop. She was restored to a partial degree of strength and sent back to her labor. She worked in an establishment for making ladies' visites and mantillas. At this establishment eighty girls were working together in a single room for ten hours daily.

Great Indian Remedy
FOR MARRIED LADIES.

☞ DR. MATTISON'S INDIAN EMMENAGOGUE is a new and elegant medicine designed expressly for females. It is prepared from an Indian plant, which has been used by the natives for the same purpose from time immemorial, and is now for the first time, offered to the public. The knowledge of this wondrous plant was obtained from the late SKENANDOAH an Oneida Chief, who lived near Syracuse, New York, to a great age. It is neatly put up in ounce bottles with full directions for using, and is warranted to cure any case of obstruction of the Monthly Sickness—often in twenty-four hours, after all other remedies have been tried in vain. This may seem incredible, but if it fails in any case the price will be refunded. It will also prevent obstructions if taken for a day or two before the usual period, and is therefore of the greatest value to married ladies wishing to avoid the accidents to which they are liable.

☞ Purely vegetable, containing nothing in the least injurious to health, and may be taken with perfect safety at all times.

LADIES, therefore, in want of something reliable, had better send for the INDIAN EMMENAGOGUE, instead of wasting time and money in trying other things which are always either unsafe or uncertain, and therefore never warranted as is this GREAT REMEDY. Sent by express to all parts of the country.

Sold ONLY at DR. MATTISON'S REMEDIAL INSTITUTE for SPECIAL DISEASES, No. 28 Union street, Providence, R. I.

CIRCULARS, giving full information, with references and testimonials; also a pamphlet on DISEASES of WOMEN, and on Private and Chronic Maladies generally, sent free by enclosing a stamp to Dr. H. N. MATTISON, [illegible]

North of the second or Sachuest Beach.

On Monday, 22d day of August, at 12 o'clock, on the premises, or, if stormy, the next fair day.

THESE FARMS, situated in Middletown, about 3 1-2 miles only from Newport, near Aquidneck Fair House, are all on high land, ... connected, commanding fine views of the ..., Second and Third Beaches, Newport, ... and West Passages, and a cultivated landscape, and are in the immediate neighborhood of the residence of the Hon. S. G. Arnold, of Providence.

The 'Croucher Farm,' so called, contains about ... acres, House and Barn, and two good orchards bearing condition.

The 'Albro Farm,' of 59 acres, with House and ... buildings, and an orchard in full bearing.

The 'George H. Peckham place,' of 32 1-2 acres, has a small Cottage and other outbuildings.

These Farms belonging to the estate of the late ... Potter, of Providence, dec., which must be sold, present a rare chance for speculation,—they are susceptible, from their locality and surroundings, of being subdivided into villa lots of great beauty, if taken by a small number of gentlemen of taste, who would each improve a section, a colony could soon be established which would speedily attract a demand highly remunerative to the first purchasers.

For further information apply in Providence, to WM. M. BAILEY, 26 South Water street, or in Newport, to ALFRED SMITH.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

A compound remedy, in which we have labored to produce the most effectual alterative that can be made. It is a concentrated extract of Para Sarsaparilla, so combined with other substances of still greater alterative power as to afford an effective antidote for the diseases Sarsaparilla is reputed to cure. It is believed that such a remedy is wanted by those who suffer from Strumous complaints, and that one which will accomplish their cure must prove of immense service to this large class of our afflicted fellow-citizens. How completely this compound will do it has been proven by experiment on many of the worst cases to be found of the following complaints:—

SCROFULA AND SCROFULOUS COMPLAINTS, ERUPTIONS AND ERUPTIVE DISEASES, ULCERS, PIMPLES, BLOTCHES, TUMORS, SALT RHEUM, SCALD HEAD, SYPHILIS AND SYPHILITIC AFFECTIONS, MERCURIAL DISEASE, DROPSY, NEURALGIA OR TIC DOULOUREUX, DEBILITY, DYSPEPSIA AND INDIGESTION, ERYSIPELAS, ROSE OR ST. ANTHONY'S FIRE, and indeed the whole class of complaints arising from IMPURITY OF THE BLOOD.

This compound will be found a great promoter of health, when taken in the spring, to expel the foul humors which fester in the blood at that season of the year. By the timely expulsion of them many rankling disorders are nipped in the bud. Multitudes can, by the aid of this remedy, spare themselves from the endurance of foul eruptions and ulcerous sores, through which the system will strive to rid itself of corruptions, if not assisted to do this through the natural channels of the body by an alterative medicine. Cleanse out the vitiated blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it is obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it whenever it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Even where no particular disorder is felt, people enjoy better health, and live longer, for cleansing the blood. Keep the blood healthy, and all is well; but with this pabulum of life disordered, there can be no lasting health. Sooner or later something must go wrong, and the great machinery of life is disordered or overthrown.

Sarsaparilla has, and deserves much, the reputation, of accomplishing these ends. But the world has been egregiously deceived by preparations of it, partly because the drug alone has not all the virtue that is claimed for it, but more because many preparations, pretending to be concentrated extracts of it, contain but little of the virtue of Sarsaparilla, or any thing else.

During late years the public have been misled by large bottles, pretending to give a quart of Extract of Sarsaparilla for one dollar. Most of these have been frauds upon the sick, for they not only contain little, if any, Sarsaparilla, but often no curative properties whatever. Hence, bitter and painful disappointment has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the name itself is justly despised, and has become synonymous with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compound Sarsaparilla, and intend to supply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the load of obloquy which rests upon it. And we think we have ground for believing it has virtues which are irresistible by the ordinary run of the diseases it is intended to cure. In order to secure their complete eradication from the system, the remedy should be judiciously taken according to directions on the bottle.

PREPARED BY

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.

LOWELL, MASS.

Price, $1 per Bottle; Six Bottles for $5.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

has won for itself such a renown for the cure of every variety of Throat and Lung Complaint, that it is entirely unnecessary for us to recount the evidence of its virtues, wherever it has been employed. As it has long been in constant use throughout this section, we need not do more than assure the people its quality is kept up to the best it ever has been, and that it may be relied on to do for their relief all it has ever been found to do.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

FOR THE CURE OF

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and for Purifying the Blood.

They are sugar-coated, so that the most sensitive can take them pleasantly, and they are the best aperient in the world for all the purposes of a family physic.

Price 25 cents per Box; Five Boxes for $1.00.

Great numbers of Clergymen, Physicians, Statesmen, and eminent personages, have lent their names to certify the unparalleled usefulness of these remedies, but our space here will not permit the insertion of them. The Agents below named furnish gratis our AMERICAN ALMANAC in which they are given; with also full descriptions of the above complaints, and the treatment that should be followed for their cure.

Do not be put off by unprincipled dealers with other preparations they make more profit on. Demand AYER'S, and take no others. The sick want the best aid there is for them, and they should have it.

All our Remedies are for sale by Druggists everywhere. Aug 13.

FISKE MEDICAL PRIZE QUESTIONS.

THE Trustees of the Fiske Fund, at the annual meeting of the Rhode Island Medical Society, held in Providence June 1st, 1859, announced that the premium of two hundred dollars offered by them in 1858, for the best dissertation on the following subjects—

"The effect of the use of alcoholic liquors in tubercular disease, or in constitutions predisposed to such disease," had been awarded to the author of the dissertation bearing the motto,

"Occasio praeceps experientia fallax judicium difficile."

And upon breaking the seal of the accompanying packet, they learned that the successful competitor was John Bell, M. D., of New York.

They propose the following subjects for 1860:

1st. Diptheria; its nature and treatment, with an account of the history of its prevalence in different countries.

2d. The morbid effects of retention in the blood of the elements of the urinary secretion.

For the best dissertation on either of these subjects the Trustees will pay the sum of one hundred dollars.

Every competitor for a premium is expected to conform to the following regulations, viz:

To forward to the Secretary of the Fiske Fund Trustees, on or before the 1st day of May, 1860, free of all expense, a copy of his dissertation, with a motto written thereupon, and also accompanying a sealed packet, having the same motto inscribed upon the outside, and his name and place of residence within.

Previously to receiving the premium awarded, the author of the successful dissertation must transfer to the Trustees all his right, title and interest in and to the same, for the use, benefit and behoof of the Fiske Fund.

Letters accompanying the unsuccessful dissertations will be destroyed by the Trustees, unopened, and the dissertations may be procured by their respective authors, if application be made therefor within three months.

OF THE

NINETEENTH CENTURY,

PROFESSOR WOOD'S

HAIR RESTORATIVE.

Says the St. Louis (Mo.) Democrat: Below we publish a letter to Dr. Wood, of this city, from a gentleman in Maine, which speaks glowingly of the superior merits of his Hair Tonic. Such evidence must have its effect, when coming from a reliable source. If certificates are guarantees of truth, then the Doctor needs no encomiums nor useless puffery from the press:

BATH, Maine, Jan. 20, 1856.

Professor O. J. Wood & Co.:

GENTLEMEN, Having my attention called a few months since to the highly beneficial effects of your Hair Restorative, I was induced to make application of it upon my own hair, which had become quite gray, probably one third white; my whiskers were of same character. Some three months since I procured a bottle of hair restorative and used it. I soon found it was proving what I had wished. I used it about twice a week. I have since procured another bottle, of which I have used some. I can now certify to the world that the gray or white hair has totally disappeared, both on my head and face, and my hair has resumed its natural color, and I believe more soft and glossy than it has been before for twenty-five years. I am now sixty years old; my good wife at the age of fifty-two, has used it with the same effect.

The above notice I deem due to you for your valuable discovery. I am assured that whoever will rightly use, as per directions will not have occasion to contradict my statements. I am a citizen of this city and a resident here for the last fifteen years, and am known to nearly every one here and adjoining towns. Any use you may make of the above, with my name attached, is at your service, as I wish to preserve the beauties of nature in others as well as myself. I am, truly, yours, A. C. RAYMOND.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23, 1858.

Professor Wood—Dear Sir: Having had the misfortune to lose the best portion of my hair, from the effects of the yellow fever in New Orleans in 1854, I was induced to make a trial of your preparation, and found it to answer as the very thing needed. My hair is now thick and glossy, and no words can express my obligations to you in giving to the afflicted such a treasure. FINLEY JOHNSON.

The undersigned, Rev. J. K. Bragg, is a minister in regular standing, and pastor of the Orthodox Church at Brookfield, Mass. He is a gentleman of great influence and universally beloved. WM. DYER.

BROOKFIELD, Jan. 12, 1858.

Professor Wood—Dear Sir: Having made trial of your Restorative, it gives me pleasure to say, that its effect has been excellent in removing inflammation, dandruff and a constant tendency to itching with which I have been troubled from my childhood; and has also restored my hair which was becoming gray, to its original color. I have used no other article with anything like the same pleasure or profit.

Yours truly, J. K. BRAGG.

The Restorative is put up in Bottles of 3 sizes, viz: large, medium and small; the small holds 1-2 a pint, and retails for one dollar a bottle; the medium holds at least twenty per cent more in proportion than the small, retails for two dollars a bottle; the large holds a quart, 40 per cent more in proportion retails for $3 a bottle.

BY REV. WILLIAM PATTON, D. D.

Providence, June 6th, 1859.

S. Clough & Co—Dear Sirs:—The Cottage Pollyglott Testament answers the purpose for which it was prepared better than any work I know of. Few Sabbath School Teachers, after knowing its character, will be willing to dispense with it. B. SEARS.

Providence, June 24, 1859.

S. Clough & Co.—Dear Sirs:—I have examined with care and corresponding interest your "Cottage Testament" and I have no hesitation in saying that I consider it the best single help to the thorough comprehension of the New Testament within the reach of the Sabbath School Teacher and the general reader. Its notes are concise, clear, evangelical and eminently judicious, and I commend the book most heartily and earnestly. WM. C. RICHARDS.

They remove all obstructions from the internal organs—regulate the Bowels—purify the Blood—remove Humors—excite the Liver to a healthy action, give strength and tone to the stomach—cure Jaundice and Dyspepsia—create an appetite—increase and renew the circulation—remove all Bilious diseases—cure Piles, Headache, Weakness, &c., and are the best medicine ever discovered for all Female Complaints. They purify, heal, strengthen, build up, and keep in order "the house you live in."

Doctor's prescriptions clothed in Latin verbs,
Now yield the palm to Langley's Roots and Herbs,
Forsake vile drugs and cull from Nature's store,
As did the Patriarchs in days of yore.

From broad Atlantic to Pacific's shore,
From North to South their healing virtues lend,
And in these Bitters prove the people's friend.
They'll strengthen, warm, your bodies vigorous make,
Rouse drooping spirits and new blood create.

So if you wish to feel well—act well—do well, and keep well, use this standard valuable medicine.

Only 25 cents for a pint; 37 cents for a large bottle.—Sold by all dealers in medicine everywhere.

NEW AGRICULTURAL SETTLEMENT.

TO ALL WANTING FARMS.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY IN A DELIGHTFUL AND HEALTHY CLIMATE, 25 MILES SOUTHEAST OF PHILADELPHIA, ON THE CAMDEN AND ATLANTIC RAILROAD, NEW JERSEY.

An old estate consisting of several thousand of acres of productive soil has been divided into Farms of various sizes to suit the purchaser. A population of some Fifteen Hundred, from various parts of the Middle States and New England have settled there the past year, improved their places and raised excellent crops. The price of the land is at the low sum of from 15 to 20$ per acre, the soil is of the best quality, for the production of wheat, clover, corn, peaches, grapes and vegetables. IT IS CONSIDERED THE BEST FRUIT SOIL IN THE UNION. The place is perfectly secure from frosts—the destructive enemy of the farmer.—Crops of grain, grass and fruit are now growing and can be seen. By examing the place itself, a correct judgement can be formed of the productiveness of the land. The terms are made easy to secure the rapid improvement of the land, which is only sold for actual improvement. The result has been, that within the past year some three hundred houses have been erected, two mills, one steam, four stores, some forty vineyards and peach orchards, planted, and a large number of other improvements, making it a desirable and active place of business.

THE MARKET,

as the reader may perceive from its location, is the BEST IN THE UNION.

Produce bringing double the price than in locations away from the city, and more than double the price than the West. It is known that the earliest and best fruits and vegetables, in this latitude come from New Jersey, and are annually exported to the extent of millions.

In locating here, the settler has many advantages. He is within a few hours ride of the great cities of New England and Middle States, he is near his old friends and associations, he is in a settled country where every improvement of comfort and civilization is at hand. He can buy every article that he wants at the cheapest price, and sell his produce for the highest,—in the West this is reversed—he has schools for his children, divine service, and will enjoy an open winter, and delightful climate, where fevers are entirely unknown. The result of the change upon those from the north, has generally been to restore them to an excellent state of health.

In the way of building and improving, lumber can be obtained at the mills at the rate of ten to fifteen dollars per thousand. Bricks from the brick yard opened in the place, every article can be procured in the place, good carpenters are at hand and there is no place in the Union where buildings and improvements can be made cheaper.

The reader will at once be struck with the advantages here presented and ask himself why the property has not been taken up before. The reason is, it was never thrown into the market; and unless these statements were correct, no one would be invited to examine the land before purchasing. This all are expected to do. They will see land under cultivation, such is the extent of the settlement that they will no doubt meet persons from their own neighborhood; they will witness the improvements and can judge the character of the population. If they come with a view to settle, they should come prepared to stay a day or two and be ready to purchase, as locations cannot be held on refusal.

There are two daily trains to Philadelphia and to all settlers who improve, the RAILROAD COMPANY GIVES A FREE TICKET FOR SIX MONTHS, AND A HALF-PRICE TICKET FOR THREE YEARS.

THE TOWN OF HAMMONTON.

In connection with the agricultural settlement, a new and thriving town has naturally arisen, which presents inducements for any kind of business, particularly stores and manufactories. The shoe business could be carried on in this place and market to good advantage, also cotton business, and manufactories of agricultural implements or founderies for casting small articles. The improvement has been so rapid as to insure a constant and permanent increase of business. Town lots of a good size, we do not sell small ones, as it would effect the improvement of the place, can be had at from one hundred dollars and upwards.

The Hammonton Farmer, a monthly literary and agricultural sheet, containing full information of Hammonton, can be obtained at 25 cents per annum.

Titles indisputable—warrantee deeds given clear of all incumbrance when money is paid. Route to the land: leave Vine street wharf, Philadelphia for Hammonton by Railroad, at 7 1-2 a. m., or 4 1-2 p. m. Fare 90 cents. When there enquire for Mr. Byrnes. Boarding conveniences on hand. Parties had better stop with Mr. Byrnes, a principal, until they have decided as to purchasing, as he will show them over the land in his carriage, free of expense. Letters and applications can be addressed to Landis and Byrnes, Hammonton P. O., Atlantic Co., New Jersey, or S. B. Coughlin, 202 South Fifth Street, Philadelphia. Maps and information cheerfully furnished. July 9—6m
